LAW S

OF THE

Cambridge Antiquarian Society,

FOR THE ENCOURAGEMENT OF THE STUDY OF THE HISTORY AND ANTIQUITIES OF THE UNIVERSITY, COUNTY, AND TOWN OF CAMBRIDGE.

I.—THAT the object of the Society be to collect and to print information relative to the above-mentioned subjects.

II.—That any member of the University may become a Member of the Society on paying a subscription of Ten Shillings every term; such subscription to be paid in advance on, or before, the first day of the Lent Term 1840, and on, or before, the first day of each subsequent Term.

III.—That any person not of the University, who is desirous of becoming a Member of the Society, be proposed by two Members, at any of the ordinary Meetings of the Society, ballotted for at the next Meeting, and admitted on payment of the same subscriptions.

IV.—That the management of the affairs of the Society be vested in a President, and a Council consisting of eight Members, including a Treasurer and Secretary, (five, including the President or Chairman, to form a quorum,) all of whom shall in future be elected annually by the Society at large, at a General Meeting to be held on the first Thursday in the month of May.

V.—That the names of the Members proposed to be elected into the Council be transmitted by the proposers to the Secretary one fortnight before the General Meetings; and that notice of the persons so proposed be forwarded by the Secretary to all the Members of the Society one week before the General Meetings.

VI.—That at the General Meetings votes for the election of the President and Council may be given, either personally, or by letter (post-paid), addressed to the Secretary; and that no Member be entitled to vote at any General Meeting, whose subscription is in arrear.

The first has been referred to by Dr Caius<sup>b</sup>, and the second introduced into his History<sup>c</sup>. His handwriting appears in the margin at several places.

The writing is exceedingly abbreviated, thus realising the announcement on the title. To the common reader it would be as if written in an unknown language. Several curious misnomers will be observed. The e is universally used in place of the diphthong æ; in addition to which we may remark the frequent use of c for ti, and a singular perverseness—not unknown in the present dialectic usages—whereby the aspirate is omitted in some places and interpolated in others in opposition to the “lex et norma loquendi.” No stops are used except the colon in the middle of the line for a semicolon, and the colon at the bottom of the line after abbreviations. There are two or three entries in a different hand, which are denoted by the difference in type. Upon the chronicler’s latinity we do not venture any encomium; but his warmth of feeling and high tone of sentiment may afford satisfaction, in spite of the superstition which, as constantly in monumental inscriptions, so here occasionally, deforms the expression.

A page of memoranda found in another volume, inserted by some owner of the MS. to fill up the blank space on a page, is appended to this article, for the matter it contains, for its antiquity, and that it proceeds from the same collection of MSS. It illustrates also the form of this Cronicon, in stating the litera dominicalis.

NOTE.—Hume asserts, “There is no part of English history since the Conquest so obscure, so uncertain, so little authentic or consistent, as that of the wars between the two Roses: Historians differ about many material circumstances; some events of the utmost consequence, in which they almost all agree, are incredible and contradicted by records; and it is remarkable, that this profound darkness falls upon us just on the eve of the restoration of letters, and when the art of printing was already known in Europe.” Hist. of England, iii. 234.
